THE LEONARD GAETZ METHODIST CHURCH.

Corner Stone to be Laid To-day.

Premier Rutherford and Hon.
Mr. Cushing Expected.

The corner stone of the Leonard Gaetz Memorial Methodist church will be laid this Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the Rev. C. H. Hueatis, President of the Methodist conference. Hon. A. C. Rutherford, Premier of Alberta; Hon. W. H. Cushing, Minister of Public Works; Dr. T. J. of the Provincial University, and perhaps Rev. A. C. Farrell, are expected to be present and take part in the proceedings, besides the Mayor, E. Michener, M.P., and other prominent citizens of the town.

After the ceremony the Ladies' Aid will hold a tea.

The Telephone Question.

The Advocate claims the News makes no reasonable proposition to solve the telephone question, and only knocks and fights without any definite aim. We certainly feel like fighting, and we claim we are fighting justly and have the people behind us. The Advocate is not aware any offer was made the company by the government or town, yet a motion can be found on the books of the town making an offer on the valuation of the plant, and we have the word of Hon. Mr. Cushing, Minister of Public Works, that the government sent a valuator to estimate the worth of the Evans line, and an offer was made on that valuation to the company, but they wanted a great deal more for the line, and the government considered the cost far too high.

McPhee is Coming.

Andrew McPhee's big tent show, with a well balanced company, presenting up-to-date melodramas, opened their first performance in Regina yesterday, and played to crowded houses. This is McPhee's annual tour, and the people of the west are always satisfied that his shows are the best of their kind, and without a tinge of vulgarity. The bill last night was "The Girl I Love," a thrilling melodrama in four acts. The parts brought forth the emotional and realistic side of life, and each actor and actress was an artist in their execution of the story of love. The special favorites were Mlle. La Tena Downey and Lorie Ransdall, while the hero won the hearts of the audience and received liberal applause. The specialties were the best, and vaudeville of the best type was presented between the acts. Some excellent juggling by a king in that line, and an acrobatic stunt of exceptional nature delighted the crowded tent, and altogether the show was one of the best for the money witnessed in the west.

Will exhibit at Red Deer, Saturday evening, September 11th, under our big waterproof tents. Admission 25c. and 50c.

The Saskatchewan Co. Reference.

Evidence was taken before F. S. Simpson a short time ago in the Saskatchewan Land and Homestead Co. A number of witnesses were examined to try and ascertain the value of land and to find out if possible if the land had in some cases been sold at too low a price. It was shown G. W. Greene had had an option on fifty acres in section 21 at $10 an acre which he had abandoned. This was sold to Warren for $5 an acre and taken over by Mr. Moore. Mr. Jamieson said he had paid $8 an acre for section 15 east of town. Mr. Bower paid $10 south of town for part of nine and Mr. Warren was sold part for $5 an acre, which came into Mr. Moore's possession. The object of the investigation is to show this land was sold too low. It was also shown some seven thousand cords of wood were cut off Burt Lake property at a very low rate. The Court of Appeal meets this month in Toronto and it is hoped all pending disputes will be settled. Mr. Cunningham leaves for the east in a few days, but no matter what happens he does not think matters of this kind will delay the possession of the lands by the Saskatchewan Co. Mr. Crawford appeared for the Saskatchewan Co., J. Carlyle Moore for the Leadley estate, and G. W. Greene for J. T. Moore.

Eckville.

J. E. Haughin is here with his well-drilling outfit. Mrs. Bruyseralde has been staying with friends in Red Deer. The crops are nearly all harvested and well up to expectations.

Representatives of the Alberta Central Railroad have been looking over the country west. Is there anything in it this time? The hotel has been doing a land office business for the past week, financiers, real estate men, surveyors, etc. Quite like old times.

Some of our church-goers were left in the lurch the other Sunday. The horse, having made up his mind that he was being imposed upon, came on alone.

Dr. Tanche was brought out from the lake to attend H. Coultella, who was badly kicked by a horse. He says no bones are broken, but the patient will be in pain for some time. M. Archambault accompanied the Dr. from the lake.

Wedding at Penhold.

A very interesting and pleasant ceremony took place on Friday, Sept. 3rd, at the home of Andrew Shields, Penhold, when Robert George McLean and Bessie T. McLean, both of Culham, Alta., were united in marriage. Rev. L. Ernest Gosling officiating. There were present only the immediate relatives and friends of both bride and groom. After the ceremony was over a time was spent in a social way, music furnishing a good part of the entertainment. After this the guests sat down to a bountiful supply of the good things of life, provided so liberally by Mrs. Shields.

The happy couple purpose visiting friends for a few days in this district, after which they leave for their new home at Culham. Their many friends join heartily in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

Gaetz Valley.

Wm. Shuttleworth has left on a business trip to the east.

V. Gilbert, of Alix, dropped in on his Valley friends a week ago Sunday.

A fine crop of grain is being harvested by every one in this vicinity.

Roy Smith is spending some time at home now before going back to college at Toronto.

Mrs. R. C. Emmerson, of Red Deer, is spending some time at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin.

A few mail boxes on the new rural mail route are already in operation. They are certainly a great convenience.

Messrs. Carson and Moore of Stettler were Labor Day visitors at the home of Roy Smith, who returns to Toronto this week.

J. J. Lawson has a fine stand of corn. If it be spared from the frost Mr. Lawson will have a fine yield, as it looks fine at the present time.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Little, who have been at the Valley since spring, are leaving shortly for southern Alberta, and from there they will go back to Windsor, Ont. We hope to see Mr. and Mrs. Little at the Valley in the spring again.

John Golden left the Valley last week on a business trip to Calgary. But to the surprise of some of the Valley folks, the business proved to be the cementing of a life-long union with a young lady from Walkerville, Ont. After a brief honeymoon at Banff and other points, Mr. and Mrs. Golden expected to arrive at the Valley by Sunday last. Please accept our congratulations, Mr. Golden.

North Pole Discovered.

The most sensational piece of news the past week was on Thursday when a dispatch was received from Dr. Fred Cook, an American explorer, of Brooklyn, N.Y., from Lovick, Shetland Islands, stating that he had at last discovered the north pole. The expedition started two years ago and the pole was reached April 21st 1908. There was nothing there but a field of ice. Some people doubt the story, but President Taft accepts discovery of pole as genuine.

non-satisfaction with the large American immigration has stimulated a desire by some people in Canada to be incorporated with the United States. The Montreal Free Press newspaper says that 80,000 Americans with 80,000 dollars of capital, have come to enrich the Dominion of Canada. We are glad to hear of this. Next year there will probably be still greater number, and if this year's harvest proves as fertile as those that have preceded it, we will be able to welcome many more.

THE TWO ROSS RIFLES.

The Ross rifle is still discussed by the papers and since the Bley shoot has received considerable praise as it was the arm used by most of the Canadian team. But the Ross rifle of Bley differs in several respects from the Ross rifle of commerce. It weighs 9 1-2 pounds, whereas the Ross service rifle weighs only 7 1-2. Its barrel is 30 1-2 inches long or 2 1-2 inches more than the rifle which the department has bought. The rifling is left handed 23-4 turns, whereas the service weapon is right handed and 2 1-2 turns. The outside diameter at the muzzle is 0.650 of an inch, and that of the Ross rifle of the contract 0.566. The thickness of the barrel in the Bley Ross rifle is one-half greater than that of the 60,000 rifles bought by the department.

A recent Winnipeg letter gives some evidence to show how real estate values have gone up in that city. We quote:—"Two record prices of real estate were made this week. One of these was a price of $1,500 a foot for Portage avenue property well out the avenue, and the other was a price of $130 a frontage foot for residential properties on Wellington Crescent. These are the highest prices ever reached in their respective localities, although Portage avenue frontage near Main street, has sold for $3,000 a foot.

In the old days boards of conciliation were in a position to settle trade disputes, and to present or to end strikes. Now the labor department stands in the way. Under the manipulation of that bureau the Lemoine act is a bar to conciliatory proceedings. If the act has not been invoked, and the resultant report is not satisfactory to either side, the labor fight may proceed, and the department will not interfere. In any case friendly bargaining is rendered difficult. Some sensible means of dealing with this growing question will have to be devised—Mail and Empire.

Nothing Yet in Government Packing Plant.

GOVERNMENT WAITING FOR REPORT AS TO WHETHER FARMERS ARE PREPARED TO FURNISH HOGS.

Hon. W. T. Finlay, Minister of Agriculture, denied a rumor to the effect that the provincial government were proposing to take over a local packing house for pork packing purposes in fulfillment of their promise of a government owned and operated packing plant.

"I have heard nothing of such a proposition," said the Hon. Minister when interviewed by a representative of the Edmonton Journal. "The government are taking no steps in the matter of establishing a pork packing plant at present, until they satisfy themselves that the farmers of the Province are prepared to stand by their part of the agreement." The government's proposal, as outlined at the last session of the provincial legislature, in accordance with the recommendations submitted by the pork packing commission is to establish a government packing plant, provided the farmers agree to raise a certain number of hogs per year and furnish a guarantee to sell their hogs to the government plant only. For the purpose of ascertaining whether the farmers of the province are ready to enter an agreement to this effect, the department of agriculture has placed a man in the field to visit all the farmers in turn. This agent is still at work, and until he completes his work, the government will not take steps in the matter. There is appropriation of $50,000 towards the establishment of a plant, and this amount the government is prepared to expend the moment they are assured that the farmers are at their back.

Big Race Meeting and Fruit Fair at Cranbrook.

Cranbrook, B. C., Sept. 1st.—On September 14th and 15th Cranbrook will hold her big race meeting and agricultural fair. Large prizes are being offered and the people of the district are very enthusiastic. All of the ranchers and fruit growers of East Kootenay are working to make a big display so as to show what this district can produce. The horsemen have interested the racing people of Western Canada and the Northwestern States and in consequence there will be a fine showing on the track. Cranbrook has a reputation for making good on any entertainment that she attempts and the people in charge of the fair this year propose to do better than has ever been done in this city before.

H. M. S. Neptune, the Most Powerful Fighter in the World, Added to the British Navy.

London, Sept. 6th.—H. M. S. Neptune, the newest and largest ship of the Dreadnought class, to be added to the British navy, is to be launched within the next two or three weeks. She is being built on the slip at Portsmouth dockyard. Following the precedent of the Dreadnought, the Neptune has been built with as much secrecy as possible. No information as to dimensions or special features of the ship have been made known by the admiralty, nor will they.

MOST POWERFUL AND THE LARGEST. Some details have leaked out, and from these it is evident that the Neptune will be the most powerful fighting ship in the world, as well as the largest. Her displacement will be 20,250 tons, as against the 17,000 of the Dreadnought and 15,000 of the Bellerophon and the St. Vincent, her immediate predecessor.

This increased displacement has been devoted to providing the Neptune with greater protection to her hull. She has been built so as to render her proof against submarine explosions as far as it is possible to do so, for the watertight compartments are so numerous that two or three might be flooded and yet the ship could keep on fighting.

HER ENGINES WILL BE TURBINES.

The Neptune will be 600 feet long and 86 feet beam. Her engines, to be on the turbine principle, will give her a speed of 21 knots. She is to be armed on the all big gun principle and will carry ten 12-inch guns of the latest pattern, which will be mounted in pairs in armored barbettes while for resisting torpedo attacks she is to carry twenty 4-inch guns.

Her protection will consist of a complete belt made of Krupp steel 11 in. thick amidships, with armor of corresponding thickness elsewhere. For launching this huge vessel a massive cradle of steel and wood is being built under the hull.

Britain Now Mistress of Air.

HENRY FARMAN AN EASY WINNER IN THE CRANBROOK CONTEST AT RHEIMS—THE SURPRISE OF THE MEET.

Botheny Aviation Field, Rheims, France, Aug. 27.—Henry Farman, the English aviator, a dark horse in the aviation contests, in a biplane of his own design, today broke the world's record for duration of flight and distance in a heavier than air machine, and won the grand prix de la champagne—the endurance test, by a remarkable flight officially recorded as 180 kilometres (111.78 miles) in three hours, four minutes, fifty-six and two-fifths seconds. He actually covered an extra kilometre and remained in the air ten minutes after 7.30 o'clock this evening, the hour that the time keeper under the rules, ceased to keep a record of the flight.

1,400 Lives Lost.

GREAT FLOODS IN MEXICO.

Mexico City, Aug. 30.—Conservative estimates of the damage done by the flood at Monterrey place the dead at 1,400 and the property loss at $12,000,000. The river has receded and the danger is over. Six hundred and fifty bodies have been recovered. One quarter of the city was destroyed and 15,000 persons are homeless. The water mains are useless and the place is consequently without a drinking water supply. Neither is there light nor car service as the power plant has been damaged.

It will be impossible to resume train service for a week and as a result the city is threatened with famine. The slaughter houses have been destroyed. Ten thousand people are fed on bread, coffee and soup by the municipal authorities and the American consular is giving food to all who apply.

FOLEY'S PREMIER SODAS

The flour and lard used in any sodas may be good, but that is not all that is wanted in a satisfying biscuit—it is not all that Foley's Sodas give. Good flavor is essential. In securing the good flavor of Foley's Sodas we recognize the importance of a perfectly-operating yeast. We take no chances with our yeast. We could buy it from outside sources at less cost, but we do not do so. All the yeast used in Foley's Sodas is made in our own factory and by securing perfect working of that yeast, we get the delightful flavor for which Foley's Sodas are famous. Never sour, never flat or pasty—always sweet, crisp and good all the way through.

Fall Skin Diseases.

An Article for Mothers.

When the children "break out" with eruptions and skin diseases, so common in the fall, don't run to useless and nauseating medicines. Zam-Buk is what is needed. It is a skin food as well as a healing balm.

Mrs. Chas. Levere, of Prescott, North Channel, Ont., tells how Zam-Buk cured her baby. She says:—"My baby's head and face was one complete mass of sores. The itching and irritation were fearful, and the little one's plight was so fearful that at once time we feared that her ears would be eaten off."

"We had to keep her hands tied for days to prevent her rubbing and scratching the sores. Doctor after doctor treated her in vain, until we had had five doctors. They all agreed it was a frightful case of eczema, but none of them did any permanent good."

"As a last resource we were advised to try Zam-Buk. The first box did so much good that we felt sure we were at last working in the right direction. We persevered with the treatment until we had used thirteen boxes, and at the end of that time I am glad to say Zam-Buk effected a cure."

Mrs. Holmes, of 38, Gulse Street, Hamilton, is quite as eloquent in her praise. She says:—"Zam-Buk cured my boy of boils and eruptions when he was so bad that he had been unable to mix with other children. Prior to the use of Zam-Buk he had had a bad eruption, but Zam-Buk cleared this away too, and made his skin clear and smooth. It is a wonderful preparation, and mothers throughout the land should always keep it handy."

For eczema, rashes, nettle, itch, ringworm, and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles, abscesses, chronic sores, blood-poisoning, etc. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Fiction HONOR OF THE TENTH

By EILEEN MORETTA.

The honor of the Tenth had been smirched. The rank and file growled it out in barracks, the officers whispered it to each other, and as the colonel sat on the veranda of his bungalow and admitted it to himself he laid much of the blame on his own shoulders.

The robber bands of India, known as dacoits, had been busy around Allwal, and squads of British cavalry were being sent out every few days to destroy them. Your true dacoit is not only a robber, but a fighter as well. He robs his own race whenever opportunity offers and fights the British whenever and wherever he meets them. He is a good shot, a brave foe, and there are honor and promotion to be had in warring with him. Young Danforth had lately joined the Tenth. He had family and political influence, and he had a personality which made friends. There could be no greater privilege than to be sent out to the head of a detachment to give the dacoits a whiff. When the time came that the colonel could do Young Danforth this favor he had a long and quiet talk with him. He posted him as to the characteristics and tactics of the foe and warned him of the pitfalls that awaited him. Officers might fall into it. He was to lead the enemy and destroy him, but he was cautioned against impetuosity and useless sacrifice of men. This expedition was to be the young officer's "tryout." He had never been under fire, and he could not claim full kinship with the men who were to be his.

They gave Young Danforth a British sergeant and corporal and thirty-eight Sikhs troopers. Under an officer in whom he had confidence, he was a better soldier than the Sikhs. His only weak point was that he must have his nose in front of him. Danforth had the luck to strike a band of robbers within twenty miles of the post. They had captured a village and were pillaging it. He sent scouts forward to ascertain the strength of the enemy and the lay of the land, and the head of his forty men he charged into the village and routed out the band of 150. He gave Danforth a detachment of Sikhs, and it was a little affair to be proud of. He held his men well in hand and was on the watch for trickery, and had all the troops he needed. He was a good soldier, and he was a good leader.

A court martial was demanded by Young Danforth. No sooner had the detachment returned than the remnant of the Sikhs began to whisper about incompetency and cowardice. They praised the officer for his fight at the village, but they declared that his cowardice when he found himself outnumbered was a disgrace. He was a good soldier, but he was a poor leader. He was a good soldier, but he was a poor leader. He was a good soldier, but he was a poor leader.

First Danforth could not fail to notice the change in the attitude of his brother officers. They did not cut him, but they had to make an effort to be friendly. Pretty soon his name was thrown out that it would be well for him to transfer or leave the service. Then he was to the colonel and said: "I was charged with cowardice by the Sikhs. Had my sergeant and corporal led to come back with me I could have had witnesses to prove to the contrary. The court martial took my word, however, and I was honorably acquitted. I realize that I am tainted. There are no blots that I ought to transfer or resign. With your permission I shall remain here and hope for something to happen."

"I believe that the Sikhs perjured themselves," quietly replied the colonel, "and perhaps it will be the wisest thing you can do to stay on."

The words were kind and fair, but no grip of the hand accompanied them. In his heart of hearts the colonel had hoped the subaltern would be killed, though at the same time he realized that only an innocent man would have dared to remain. Young Danforth led no more expeditions, and months rolled away before anything happened to put his case in a more favorable light. Then a number of dacoits were captured. Among them were two of three who had fought him that day. They boasted of how they had driven him, and they praised the courage he had exhibited in seeking to rally them. There was an increase of cordiality after that, but the subaltern gave no sign that he noticed it or was pleased over it.

A few months later there arrived a party of civil officials and their wives who were on a junket. They had several elephants with them for tiger hunting, and within twenty miles of the post was the game they were after. Young Danforth was one of the three officers detailed to arrange and manage the hunt. With the civil commissioner of Nepal and his wife was Lady Clifton, and the ladies were by no means novices in the sport of tiger hunting. When the hunt had been fairly entered upon, they occupied a house on the bank of a big elephant together and would not admit any one else. A tiger had been driven by the beaters into a swamp a mile long by half a mile broad, and into this spot, grown up to reeds and bushes until the eyes could scarcely penetrate, crashed the elephants and horses. The idea was to drive the tiger out upon clearer ground to the west, where he could be reached, and everybody made as much noise as possible. He was a crafty beast, and for two hours he refused to break cover.

The elephant on which the two ladies were mounted had taken the tiger, and been steady enough, but after awhile something rattled him, and he bolted across the swamp toward the trees. His master used every exertion to stop or turn him, but the old fellow was a panic. To the surprise of everybody, the tiger followed at his heels, though in a surly way, as if bent only on escape. With the elephant making a mad rush for a low branch tree that he might get rid of the burden on his back, the ladies took swift aim at the tiger and wounded him. The wound provoked his anger, and he sprang forward on the elephant's rear just as the tree reached and the branches swept the bowhead to the ground. A second later the two ladies lay on the earth among the fragments of their own carriage, and the tiger stood with his paws upon the body of Lady Clifton and growled and snarled at the dozen spectators.

Fortune had given Young Danforth his opportunity. As a sort of reward everybody else helpless, he hung about the head of his horse, grabbed a horse spear from the hand of a chattering native and advanced upon the beast. He had to cover sixty feet of clear ground, and those who looked on said that the tiger's eyes blazed fire and every hair on his back stood up as the officer walked steadily forward. A fragment of his horse's tail fell off, but he made no halt. As he drew nearer the beast crouched for a spring, and when he was within ten feet he sprang was made. Down went the man on his knees and up went the spear, and when the onlookers glanced again the man was gone. The tiger hurt and the tiger was rolling over and over on the earth with the point of the spear sticking out of his back. The ladies had not been seriously hurt, but at least one of them had been saved from the tiger's maw. Young Danforth, with a look of triumph, stepped forward and offered congratulations, and his colonel patted him on the back and said: "My dear boy, it was the coolest, bravest thing I ever heard of, and it makes us all proud of you."

"But the Sikhs who cut as a leader I got rattled and lost my head," replied the officer. "I was honorably acquitted, but I have been accused of cowardice. I feel that I smirched the honor of the Tenth. Until I can wipe that out I am an outcast."

The civil commissioner wanted to show his gratitude, and Lady Clifton had influence she wanted to bring to bear, but the subaltern remained unshaken. He was willing to wait, and he had not long to wait. The dacoits came down from the hills again, and he was given the chance he so longed for. This time his fifty troopers were all Englishmen, and he not only attacked Mooltan, the greatest robber chiefdom of the hills, but he was chosen position, but routed his force and captured the leader. That would have been a deed to boast of, but the subaltern was not satisfied. Leaving part of his force to hold the position and the prisoners, he pressed on into the foothills with the remainder and attacked and captured a camp and brought off the sergeant and corporal who had been made prisoners in the first affair. Then a second company of martial at Allwal on the return of the troop, and when the sergeant and corporal had proved that the Sikhs were not to be trusted, he was given a jubilee and declared that his honor was never so bright. At the dinner they toasted "our comrade and hero."

Fleeing From Death.
In one of our seaport towns lives a mother who determined that, whatever happened, her son should never be drowned. Her father was a sailor and was drowned at sea. She lost her husband and her brother in the same way. The horror of the great deep was upon her. Only those that have lived by the sea know what this terror is. To guard her only son from a watery death became a real passion with her. The thought qualified all her plans for his future and kept her in ceaseless watch of his movements.

As the boy grew he was not allowed to paddle in boats or to learn to swim, and when he was old enough to earn his own living his mother sent him to an inland town in the neighborhood of Boston.

"When you get started," she said, "I will come and see with you. I don't ever want to see the water again."

It was not long before the young man found work as a tinsmith. His work was not so pleasant as that of his employers, but one day the horses took fright and ran away. The boy swung around and upset a plank bridge, under which a man was driving. The driver was struck and, becoming unconscious, was buried into the brook. The water barely covered him. He was drowned.

A Day's Duck Shooting.

Written for the News.

I was conscious that my beauty sleep was being broken by a voice and at first I could not distinguish anything, but gradually I awoke to the fact that I was being told that it was "after 3," and my better half was shaking me. The only idea that I had for some time was that another two hours' sleep would do me a vast amount of good, but when the word "ducks" was said, I was soon fully awake to the situation. A friend had suggested that we go out duck shooting, and hence my getting out of a comfortable bed at that unwholesome early hour. I got up and lit the fire, and tried to eat some breakfast by lamp light. After fumbling around, I had my outfit together, dressed in my oldest clothes and boots, and set out to my friend's house where the rig was waiting for us. My! but it was chilly, and I shivered in the dusk of the morning, and my friend's voice was decidedly chattering as he "blowed" about his wonderful shots, huge bags and the quality of his gun. The last words my wife had said as I left the house were, "Now mind you don't get wet, dear," and I thought to myself then "not much," and that a man would be plumb crazy that would deliberately go into the cold water and let all the ducks ever laid. Now I am a very quiet man, whose occupations and tastes were essentially sedentary, and until about a week before the happening of the incident now narrated, had never fired off a gun in my life, nor at any other time, but this friend of mine, whom I call Smith, had talked me into getting a gun. I had come from a country where there was no shooting for the ordinary humble citizen, and I was so dead tired of hearing other fellows trading lies about their shooting, and not being in a position to tell one myself, I allowed myself to be persuaded. And at once, how I know now, everybody seemed to know that I wished to buy a gun, and I was beset with offers of guns of all sorts, conditions, bores, sizes and prices. People came to the house or office at all hours of the day and night with guns, till my wife, who strenuously objected to the business, declared that she would not go to—send for her mother, and I rushed off to the nearest hardware and bought a gun, not to shoot myself or my wife, but to pass the time. Rubicon and finally commit myself to ducking shooting. But to resume, Smith and I arrived at the side of a slough when it was still very dusk. We tied up the horses, speaking in husky accents, and then we commenced operations. We could hear some ducks quacking in a subdued way just close by, and immediately I, an inoffensive, perhaps timid man, became shockingly filled with a blood thirstiness that amazed me, and I'm bothered if I didn't plumb forget all about what my wife had told me, and we got wet. Presently, as I peered into the gloom, I became aware that there were some objects moving about in the water about ten yards from me. Just then Smith fired, and I pointed my gun at the bunch of ducks ahead of me, shut my eyes and tugged at the trigger. She went off all right, and I nearly went off too, but when I came to my senses I saw there was something struggling in the water, and despite my wife's warning I plunged into the water and grabbed at the dying duck. It was only a very small one, and I shot to pieces, but I felt as proud as an elder taking up the collection. That fixed it, after that I became absolutely reckless, and quite indifferent to the chilly water circulating around my shanks, as long as I got a shot at the ducks, and I blazed away for all I was worth wherever I could see any. They flew all round me, but I did not understand them. They flew through the shot that I fired at them, and a suspicion struck me that the gun was no good and that the cartridges had gone rotten. But at last I fired at the big leader of a flock of mallard; much to my amazement the last one dropped and Smith yelled out "good shot"; I was as pleased as Punch and didn't say a word about the cold water. We had a great time and killed quite a few ducks until I had fired off all my shells, and when I begged Smith to give me just two, he said he had only two left, and we prepared for home. We were both wet from head to foot, and my trousers pockets were full of mud, weeds and wigglers. I had conscientiously kept my word, but I had unfortunately stumbled over a submerged stump and I was about submerged myself. I should not have minded, but I remembered that my wife's sensibilities might be hurt, and I wondered with a certain amount of anxiety what she would say about it. However, we pulled for home, and though my wife's delight all my wife said was: "My! you are wet, but what a lot of ducks," and dinner was ready. I was awfully pleased with myself, and my wife tells her callers with a subdued air of pride about my shooting. She blows over it more than I do. But I've got the shooting microbe or duck fever and I positively dream about slaying immense bags of all sorts of animals big and small. My wife has a new bonnet.

A SECOND LIFE

"If I only had another chance!" How often are these despairing words uttered when a man feels his strength ebbing, his forces depressed, his health undermined—often as the result of his own errors or follies, and he realizes the infinite possibilities which might lie in his grasp, could he indeed recede to the beginning of his career, "a second life" has been given.

Happily for the world, this other chance, this "second life" is to be had for the asking by means of that which has been applied by a famous physician as "the last word science has spoken" on the subject of such remedial agents, and to which, by virtue of its health-giving properties, the name of Vital—meaning life—"health-producer"—has been given.

So potent is its force that it will not only restore the health and vigour which have been lost, but, if preserved in, will in addition impart the highest measure of nervous and physical vigour of which the individual is capable; for there is a maximum capacity of health for everyone, though he may not hitherto have had the fact impressed upon him. Doctors endorse this and daily prescribe Vital in increasing quantities. The constituents which give this power are known to every physician, and one has testified to the supreme merits of Vital as

after wasting illness and as a restorer of health, not only in nervous diseases (with their innumerable symptoms of discomfort and distress, including loss of memory, insomnia, irascibility, weakness of the will, etc.), but also in mental and digestive disturbances and consumption. As eye specialists, the Empire Ophthalmic Doctors have revolutionized the treatment of defective sight and thousands of cases formerly considered incurable readily yield to the scientific treatment devised near years of research and experiment in the extensive laboratories and clinical department of the institution. Extraordinary interest has been created in professional circles by the numerous cases successfully treated for heterophoric trouble and permanent defects of the ocular system. Many a face robbed of its chief marks of beauty and character has been restored to normal appearance by a painless and nonsurgical treatment. In nearly every case of deficiency or squint a general improvement of the health has also taken place which far more than repays the patient for the amount expended on treatment. The specialists treat all cases of eye defects skillfully and you will be the loser if requiring optical aid and neglect this opportunity. Charges are made for material used only while the Doctor is at Snell's jewelry store.

P., Mayor Corbett; F. N. Ballard, Manager of Bank; A. Studer, general merchant; W. Lismer, hardware merchant, and McKenzie, Massey Harris agent. Counsellor T. A. Gaetz accompanied the party. The fire alarm last night proved to be the brigade testing the ladder appliances on the new chemical. It is usually not necessary to ring in an alarm for this purpose. The boys have some heavy work ahead of them in learning to handle those ladders. It took about eight minutes from the alarm to get the ladders to the roof of the Windsor and the chemical throwing water, but the ladder worked stiff, and the time will easily be reduced to four or five minutes.
